Our Story

For over 100 years we have taken great pride in using the finest materials, intentional design, and generations of knowledge to create long lasting accessories that will accompany you on life's many adventures. Our roots date back to 1905 to when John Willis Hulme founded our company in St. Paul, Minnesota. Originally a manufacturer of canvas awnings, the company made tents for the army in World War I and soon expanded into cases, bags, and equipment for outdoorsmen. This spirit of exploration and adventure lives on in our products along with uncompromising quality and attention to detail.

American Heritage

OVER 100 YEARS IN THE MAKING

With this Made in America collection, we begin our journey back home – to the quiet lake shores and serene woods and to the bustling offices and busy city streets of this great country. Our history of over 100 years is one of pride in craft, skill in execution, and commitment to creating timeless items as functional as they are refined. We look to honor that history here once again.

To accompany our J.W. Hulme fine leather bags and apparel, we've partnered with some of the pioneers of great American quality to curate a collection of products celebrating centuries of United States manufacturing heritage. Superior products made by legendary American establishments known for their artistry, excellence, and signature techniques handed down generation after generation.

We hope you find something among the pages that speaks to you and helps you celebrate and share your own personal heritage and history. From durable yet elegant leather goods to the first brand of sunglasses to land on the moon, the striking results of decades of dedication to craft await your discovery.

Scout Stripe

American Leather

The J.W. Hulme mission remains to construct fine leather goods from quality American hides while honoring the timeless appeal of nature's most versatile and elegant material. We develop our leathers in partnership with select tanneries located right here in the United States.

Our exclusive products feature Heritage latigo leather. A vegetal tanned, full-grain steer/cowhide treated with oils to provide tight grain and beautiful temper. Clear, soft waxes help maintain color integrity while also protecting the durable, supple surface from the demands of everyday wear.

The hides remain semi-naked to reveal natural variations such as small scars, creases, and unique striations that appear more pronounced than in further-processed leathers, offering a distinguished finish. Skilled artisans handcraft each piece with an uncompromising eye for detail to bring out individual features, resulting in a naturally rich coloration that gains character and soul with age.
